TEN DAYS LATER!

Arrival of Bark "Comet!" FOURTEEN DAYS PASSAGE.

The favorite packet Comet arrived yesterday afternoon, 14 days from San Francisco, bringing the Eastern mails.

The bark What Cheer, Raymond, sailed the same day for this port, with cargo, which will be found in our marine column.

The Comet brings San Francisco Weeklies of April 5th and Dailies to the 9th. The news does not appear to be very startling. The following significant telegram explains why nothing more is published;

"We are not allowed to telegraph of contemplated movements The government has thus stopped the telegraphic reports of intended advances.

Gen. Beauregard, with 45,000 rebel troops, was at Corinth, but a deserter reports them in a state and the dogs constantly supplied with fresh food. bordering on insubordination, and that 'f attacked they will stampede.

Gen. Beauregard has ordered Gen. Price and his troops in Arkansas, said to number 25,000, to join him at Corinth, evidently for the purpose of making a last desperate stand. Corinth is a small town in the North-east corner of the State of Mississipi, about 5 miles south of the Tennesse boundary, and on the Memphis and Georgia railroad.

The following is the most important news received: Sr. Louis, April 2, 1862 - Colonel Roberts with fifty men surprised the upper battery of Island No. 10, yesterday, drove the Rebels before them and spiked 10 of their gans. They then returned, having accomplished the object of their expedition. The cabinet of the Rebel Government held a protracted council a few days since, at which they determined to burn Richmond on the approach of the Federa; Army. This shows that Richmond notwithstanding the extraordinary time, labor, and expense devotes to its fortification, is considered by the rebels the iselves as entirely untenable. The .. has been considerable skirmishing in Virginin, the outposts of both armies being in sight of each other. . Desultory Cavalry charges are very frequent. Colesiel Geory yesterday captured a number of rebels, after a spirited skirmish, in which several of the enemy were killed. Fort Pulaski has been invested during the past thirty days and is hourly expected to surrender. There are five hundred rebels in the fort, and as they the rebels not accede to these terms fire was to be opened on the fort immediately. Our troops must have taken Thunderbolt and now occupy it. It is a town situated about five miles from Savannah. When the fort has surrendered, that city must fall an easy conquest to our arms. The utmost consternation prevails at Charleston. The people are leaving in crowds and the city is constantly agitared with the most alarming rumors. They have heard Burnside is approaching South Carolina from Newbern and they are certain that Charleston will be attacked by Sherman as soon as

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 2 .- Gov. Sprague, with the rest of the present incumbent State officers, were re-elected to-day without opposition.

LOUISVILLE, April 2 .- Reliable information from Memphis reports Gen. Sidney Johnston as saying that the fortifications were useless, as the Federals could outflank them by any position they might take. He thinks the only chance for the rebels is an open fight in the field. Our informant says the retels had 50,000 troops in a line between Huntsville and Memphis, which were being daily reinforced.

Rebel accounts say that the Union feeling in a portion of North Carolina prevails to an alarming extent, and is increasing. Letters from female correspondents of rebel soldiers other articles which were considered cumbersome. Previous to the adjournment of the Senate to-day, Mr. Trumball gave notice that he should call up the Confiscation bill at an early day, and press it daily until disposed of. Woonsrock, Va., April 3 .- Gen. Banks advanced from Strasburg this morning. When approaching this place Ashby's cavalry disputed his passage ineffectually, and his force passed through town, the rebels frequently stopping to throw shell, to which we responded with effect. Banks pursued the rebels to Edinburg, five miles beyond here. Ashby in retreating, burned two turnpike and one railroad bridge between here and Strasburg. One man was killed on our side. Our men behaved admirably. Our skirmishers were frequently fired on by the rebels' rear

WASHINGTON, April 5 .- The Senate bill to establish a steam line between California and China was made the special order for April 10th. It is stated that the rebel commander Totten has been assigned to the command of the Merrimac. The latest advices from Norfolk leave no doubt that the Merrimac has been thoroughly repaired. The delay in her coming out is believed to be that she is waiting ammunition for her new guns. As to the loss of life on her in her engagement with the Moni tor, it is now positively stated by a contraband who was a nurse in the general hospital, at Norfolk, that before is departure he helped to shroud $2 of her crew. THE CARONDELET RUNS THE GAUNTLET AT ISLAND No. 10-Carno, April 6th .- A special dispatch to the Republican says quite an excitement was created this morning among knowing ones, by the arrival of a Messenger from Island No. 10, bringing the news of the gunboat Caroadelet taking leave of the fleet and passing by the rebel fortifications, and paying a visit to Gen. Pope's headquarters. She went down about twelve o'clock on Friday evening. They covered her sides with bales of hay, and defied the whole rebel fleet of gun-boats and land batteries. They fired 88 shots at her, none of them hitting.

Captain Walker, arrived here safely, this morning, having run the blockade at Island, No. 10. The boat is not injured in the least particular. The object of the movement was as follows : Last night was very dark and stormy, and Flag Officer Foote dec ded to take advantage of it. He accordingly ornered the gunboat Carondelet to be prepared for running the blockade. The port holes were closed, all lights extinguished and a barge louded with hay lashed to both sides. When thus prepared the Carondelet started at 3 o'clock, drifting silently down towards the island. Intense anxiety was felt for the result. twenty yards, but the lights of the enemy on the banks, kept the direction while passing down. The Carondelet reached the island head without being discovered, and would have been able to pass the entire length of the Island had not the furnace fires necessary to generate sufficient steam became so great that the flames escaped from the smoke stacks. All was instantly wild with confusion. In the encmy's camp the long roll beat, and all the forces rushed to the batteries; every gun possible was brought to hear upon the vessel's path, and a heavy cannonading opened, hundreds of balls plunging into the river around. The Carondelet did not reply but kept still until out of range. One or two rebel essels when they perceived their unwelcome visitor, burriedly got out of the road for a distance of three miles. The Carondelet was exposed to an uninterrupted fire, yet was not hit by a single ball. She arrived here safely this morning and was greeted with the wildest cheers.

W. Sherman, commander of the Union army now in South Carolina, was a New England lad of limited pecuniary means. When he first visited Washington obtain admission to West Point he walked the whole distance from his father's bouse in Rhode Island to the national capital. That long, tedious murch revealed qualities which ensured his success with Gen. Jackson, who was then President. The old hero had wonderful insight into character, and in this instance was not mistaken in his man.

The London Times' Turin correspondent writes that on the evening of the 10th inst., at Bologna, a gang of about 40 malefactors, some of them in the disguise of carbineers or gendarmes, and of guards of public security, or policemen, effected their entrance into the railway station, and tying up the company's servants with ropes, carried away, overpowering all resistance, a sum of one hundred thousand france, which lay there by chance, and of which in all probability, they had obtained clandestine knowledge.

Miss J. Gougenheim, the well known actress, has given the patrons of Sunday theatricals rather a remarkable rebuke, by refusing to play at a San Francisco theatre Sunday nights. She published a card, in which she says: "I would rather be, as I am, deprived of my engagement-which was averaging seven hundred and seventy-one dollars a night (gross receipts!)-than to act in violation of the law and my own convictions of right."

The New Bedford Mercury contains a notice of the late Benjamin Tucker of Daytmouth, who died on the 19th, at the age of 80. He was a lineal descendant from Henry Tucker, who came from England about 1655, and in 1660 settled in Dartmouth, upon the farm which Benjamin Tucker inherited, and upon which he lived for eighty years. His father died at the age of SS; his grandfather at 90; and his great grandfather at 93.

It seems strange to read of a naval victory in the heart of a great continent, seven hundred miles from the large bodies of water which are the usual scene of such conflicts. Yet the success of Fort Henry was a naval victory. Here we have a number of gunboats heavily armed, ascending a river in the very centre of the United States, attacking a strong earthwork at close quarters, and coming off victorious. Foreigners will find it difficult to believe that such operations are possible on inland rivers, which are Gen. Floyd that the destruction of the stores was pregenerally of small dimensions in Europe.

INSTRUCTIONS TO GENERAL SHEBMAN .- The Washington Republican of Saturday says: to learn that on Thursday Adjutant-General Thomas sent out instructions to General Sherman, in Beaufort, to take possession of all the crops on the Island-cotton, corn rice, &c .- on military account, and ship the cotton, and such other crops as were not wanted for the army, to New York, to be sold there for account of the government; also to use negro slaves our leading citizens. The wire bridge cost about to gather and secure the crops of cotton and corn, and to erect his defences at Port Royal and other ed by the lamented Gen Zollicoffer, and was the chief places on the island.

. The instructions, so far as negroes are concerned, carry out the principles of the original instructions under which General Sherman started on the expedition, and which were so generally approved by the country. They seem to us to be, in all respects, eminently wise. It is better for the negroes to be employed than to be idle, and in this case their labor acted with a prudence, zeal and devotion to the city will save valuable crops, which would otherwise be

THE DELAWARE LOTTERIES ABOLISHED .- The Senate of Delaware has followed the example of the House, and passed the act declaring the forfeiture of the lottery privileges granted some years ago to Richard France, of Baltimore. Appended to the grant was a condition that France should pay to the State $720,000, paid in semi annual instalments of $18,000, and upon failure the grant to be of no effect. In July last France failed to pay the $18,000. But he had made sale of the franchise to John A. Morris, who paid the $18,0 0 over to the State in October, nearly four months after it was due. The question arose whether the acceptance of this money after it was due would be a waiver on the part of the State of its right of forfeiture. But the legal opin-ion is that though Morris might be the assignee of France, yet France owed the money to be State when Morris purchased the franchise, and the subsequent payment did not relieve the franchise of its liability to be declared void, arising from the detention of the money beyond the day of payment.

THE BAREFOOTED PRINTER BOY .- Some thirty years ago a barefooted boy floated down the Susquehanna on an humble raft, and arrived at Harrisburg. He came from the North, and belonged to a large family; all his worldly goods were tied up in a little pocket handkerchief. He sought and obtained employment in a printing-office as an apprentice. From an apprentice to a journeyman, from a journeyman to a reporter, from a reporter to an editor, the printer boy worked his way, against obstacles which the suffering poor only know. The young aspirant became printer to the state, and by frugal management was soon enabled to accomplish the object nearest his heart-the establishment of his mother in a home above want. His brothers were his next care, and in a few years they, too, with his sisters, were independent in the world; the once barefooted printer boy was in possession of affluence, surrounded by a young and affectionate family. He rose in honor and office, until the barefooted printer boy was elected a United States senator. This man is Simon Cameron, late Secretary of War, and now American Minister to

MISSIONARIES MURDERED IN CHINA -- By recent accounts from China, we have intelligence of the death, by violence, of two American missionaries, Messrs. Holmes and Parker. Mr. Holmes, we understand, was connected with the Southern Baptist Board of Missions; Mr. Parker with the Episcopal Mission. Che Foo, the city near which they were slain, is one of the ports opened by the late treaty; it is on the coast to the north of Shanghae, and in the province of Shantung. The circumstances leading to their being slain seem to be these: The rebels had been ravaging the country, slaying and burning; leaving a desolated country behind them. These missionaries, with the hope that they might have some influence in staying some of this destruction and cruelty, went out to reason with the insurgent chiefs. But their efforts were not well received; the chiefs gave or lers to slav them. These rebels, though operating in concert with those whose head quarters are at Nanking, yet appear to be less favorable to foreigners.

HOW THE GREAT THIEF FLOYD E-CAPED FROM FORT DONELSON .- A Fort Donelson correspondent writes as follows of the manner of Floyd's escape from that place : Surprise has often been expressed in my hearing that Pillow and Floyd should have been able to escape with 5,000 men, a number of pieces of canfiscation. She contends that the children belong in force above the fort on the opposite side of the river. and that steamers were lying near Dover, and had been conveying provisions to the rebels for several days without fear of molestation. All that Pillow and Floyd had to do, therefore, was to go down to the boat, cross the Cumberland, and go up on the opposite side as far as Nashville. It was generally supposed we had troops and batteries to defeat such a movement, but we had not; and that we had not is a great mistake, for which some one-I know not who -is responsible. Floyd, I learn, carried with him about 10 of the best of the 40 guns taken from us at Manassis-the remainder having fallen into our

The Panic at Nashville.

HOW THE CITY CAME INTO UNION HANDS. Fort Donelson, Tenn., surrendered on Sunday morning, February 16th. It took but a short time for the news to travel 70 miles, to Nashville. The effect of the news, the panic that seized the Coneederate troops in the vicinity, and possessed them during the eight days that intervened before Gens. Buell and Mitchell marched into Nashville, is thus graphically described by the Republican Banner of February 27th, which continues to be published in Early Sunday morning, (Febuary 16th.) it was rumored that Fort Donelson had surrendered, but it was not until between 10 and 11 A. M. that the rumor became general. In the mean time the General Assembly had been hastily convened, and after a short session, had adjourned to meet in the city of Memphis on the 20th. The citizens generally, unaware of any disaster to the Southern cause, were quietly repairing to church, where, however, they were met by the report that Fort Donelson had fallen, that a Federal army was already at Springfield, Robertson county, about 25 miles from this city, connected by railroad, and that the gunboats had passed Clarksville, on their way to this city. The sudden flight of the Governor and all the State officers, including the General Assembly, who took a special train through to Memphis, gave color to these absurd rumors, and the whole city was thrown into a panic. About this time Gen. Johnston's army from Bowling Green entered the city passing south, thus leaving the impression that no stand was to be made for the defense of Nashville Such hurrying to and fro was never seen. Before nightfall hundreds of citizens, with their families, were making their way as best they could for the South, many of them having no idea why they were thus recklessly abandoning comfortable homes, or where they were going About night it was announced that the military authorities would throw open the public stores to all who would

The excitement continued through Sunday night, constantly gaining strength, aided by the destruction of two gunboats at the wharf which were in process of construction-two fine New Orleans packets, the James Woods and James Johnson, having been taken for that purpose. The retreating army of Gen. Johnston continued its march, encamping by regiments at convenient points outside of the city.

Monday morning, 17th, the drama opened in the city intensely exciting. The public stores were distributed to some extent among the people, while the army and hospitals were making heavy requisitions, and pressing all men and vehicles that they could, to convey their supplies to their camps. At the same time considerable quantities were removed to the depots for transportation South. Evening came, and no gunboats and no Federal army from Kentucky. Gen. Johnston left for the South, placing Gen. Floyd in command, assisted by Generals Pillow and Hardee. The apprehension of the near approach of the enemy having been found groundless, it was determined by mature, and an order was sent to close the warehouses, and a force detailed to collect what had been "We are glad given out. This was done as far as practicable ; but on Tuesday the distribution commenced again, and continued with more or less restrictions, under the eye of the most judicious citizens, until Saturday morning.
